S. MARTIN'S CHURCH in the Liberty of Westminster.

PREFACE.

"'Tis hard, methinks, that a man cannot publish a book but he must "presently give the world a reason for't, when yet there's not one book of "twenty that will bear a reason, not one man of a hundred, perhaps, that "is able to give one, nor one reason of a thousand (when they are given) "that was the reason of doing it." (Translation of Cicero's Letters, Robert L'Estrange, 1680.) Whether this book be or be not that one of twenty, or this writer that one of a hundred, here is the one reason of a thousand which has the merit of truth. The book seems worth publishing and therefore it is published. For my share of it—let me say I was not importuned but importunate, that the book is meant well, and I hope that, being weighed in the balance, it will not be found wholly wanting.

This volume contains the Churchwardens' Accounts of St. Martin-in-the-Fields from June, 1525, to Christmas, 1603. These Accounts are contained in thirty-eight books, which have been bound together in one large volume; they are here reproduced verbatim and page for page. In the majority of cases a year's accounts are preceded by a list of burials; these are of the greater value, since the extant Registers do not begin until 1551. Until that date these lists are the only hunting-ground our parish records offer to the genealogist, and after that time they will be found, by those who are curious to search, to give names not in the registers, and to supply interesting enough details about several persons whose names appear in both sets of records. After 1550 I have made a point of indicating those names which occur in this book only, and I have used the Registers for filling up some of the blanks in the Churchwardens' lists; such additions are given in [brackets], while the footnotes distinguished by (R.) give variant forms of names from the same source.

A volume of this nature is bound to contain many repetitions; from personal experience I am sure that these are less exasperating than a suspicion that something of interest or value has been edited away.

In documents prepared by professional scriveners there are, naturally, not many difficulties of transcription; for reasons of economy the marks of contraction and abbreviation have been uniformly represented by an apostrophe; I have not noticed any case in which this leads to ambiguity. In the matter of punctuation I have followed the scribes; each Book of Accounts, therefore, is a law unto itself, and I have not aimed at enforcing consistency. Capital letters are given where the writers of the MS. have taken pains to make their intention clear; where, from carelessness or other cause, they have left the matter in doubt, I have adopted modern usage. Various types have been used in an endeavour to reproduce in print something of the effect produced by the written pages.

The notes are intended primarily for the help of those who may wish to learn something of the history of St. Martin's, but, from lack of time or specific training, may not always be able to see the interest which belongs to some apparently uninteresting items. I have done my best, under difficulties which were my own, and therefore need not be blazoned abroad, to render them accurate and clear. Many of them will be found superfluous by the trained reader; the text is all he requires, and for that he owes a debt of gratitude to the long succession of parish officials by whose care these documents have been preserved, and to the late Vestry by whose direction they are now printed.

I must not take any credit to myself for the absence of an Introduction. This admirable self-restraint is forced upon me by limits of space and money. I felt a strong temptation to add a short essay which might serve as a guide to the matters of chief interest in the following pages, but came to the reasonable conclusion that much the same information would be conveyed with more detail and precision by the Subject Index; I am thus able to find room for a few extracts from the Vestry Minutes and other sources.

I am indebted to several friends for timely aid ungrudgingly given. Mr. Hubert Hall, F.S.A., has given me much invaluable help, besides superintending, at the Record Office, searches which my continued absence from London prevented me from making for myself. Professor W. E. Collins, of King's College, kindly solved a number of my difficulties, and made several useful suggestions on other points which he foresaw would arise. Mr. Thomas Mason, F.R.Hist.S., has allowed me to use him as a court of reference on all manner of questions touching the production of this volume, and I have profited greatly by his ready sympathy and advice. I would also acknowledge the courteous assistance of Mrs. C. C. Stopes, Mr. H. G. Lee of the Bishop of London's Registry, and Mr. H. E. Johnson, Deputy Registrar of the Archdeaconry of Middlesex. The help I have thus received has gone far to remove the blemishes due to my inexperience; but, for those which remain, I must bear the responsibility.

I cannot think it out of place if I here acknowledge some small part of my debt to my father, who first aroused, and has since continually fostered, the interest in this parish and in its history, which constitutes my chief qualification for the task of preparing this volume. I hope the book may prove not unworthy of the parish of which he is vicar.

The Index of Persons has been compiled by Miss Rose H. Schloesser and Miss Wynifred M. Willis-Swan under my directions, and I have verified every reference which it contains. The Subject Index is of my own making; it does not pretend to be complete, and, with a view to keeping it within due bounds, it has been constructed on an unscientific system which I trust will not detract from its usefulness.

The plates have been executed by Messrs. J. C. Drummond & Co., of Henrietta Street, Covent Garden. Those in the text have been chosen as illustrating the style in which the accounts were engrossed and as examples of penmanship. The frontispiece is a reproduction of a Vertue's print. This has the disadvantage of being an eighteenth century work, but is the earliest obtainable likeness of the Church with which these Accounts are concerned.

I cannot close without expressing my thanks to Messrs. J. Davy & Sons, of The Dryden Press, for the interest and care with which they have performed their part in the production of this volume. I am in their debt for several valuable suggestions.

NOTE ON THE DATES OF BOOKS I-VI.

The following are the dates given in the captions of the first Six Books. I have supplied the regnal years for Book III.

Page 1.	Book I.	June 24, 16 H. viii to		March 25, 21 H. viii.		Four and three-quarter years.
,, 21.	,, II.	March 25, 23 H. viii to		,,	25 H. viii.	1531 to 1533 (1532—1534).
,, 32.	,, III.	,,	[25 H. viii] to	,,	[27 H. viii].	1533 to 1535 (1534—1536).
,, 44.	,, IV.	,,	27 H. viii to	,,	29 H. viii.	(1536—1538).
,, 58.	,, V.	,,	29 H. viii to	,,	31 H. viii.	(1538—1540).
,, 66.	,, VI.	,,	31 H. viii to	,,	33 H. viii.	1540—1542.

1. It will be noticed that the dates of Book I include five years and three-quarters.
2. The regnal years of Books II to VI are complete and consecutive.
3. The years (A.D.) for Books II and III do not correspond to the regnal years.
4. The dating of Book VI (and of subsequent books) is correct.
5. Working backwards from Book VI, I have supplied the years (in brackets).
6. The gap of regnal years, between Books I and II, is the ordinary term of churchwardens' office at that time, namely two years; I assume ∴ that the date of the end of the accounts in Book I is correct as Lady-day 21 H. viii or March 25, 1530.
7. Hence the first date should be June 24, 1525, i.e. 17 H. viii.
8. If we assume that in Book I, 16 H. viii is correct, the second date must be 20 H. viii, leaving a gap of three years between Books I and II, whereas to judge from the regnal years in Books II to V and onwards, the series of biennial accounts began in March 23 H. viii, 1532, in which case we may expect that 21 H. viii is correct, and that the other date should be 17 H. viii. If 21 H. viii and the years A.D. in Books II and III are all correct, there will be found a gap of one year between Books I and II, and of another year between Books V and VI, and all the regnal years from 23 H. viii onwards must be wrong. The simplest explanation is that the regnal years (except 16 H. viii) are correct, and that the years A.D. in II and III are wrong.

[1] A hallowed taper to stand by the font, cf. "the Light that lighteth every man into the world."

[2] 'Tenebrae' was an office for Wed: Thur: and Friday in Holy Week. During this service all lights were gradually extinguished. The last of the Tenebrae candles was taken behind the altar, and after a short space brought forward again alight, to typify Christ's Resurrection (vide Smith & Cheetham).

[3] Probably the same as Tenebrae candles. The Judas candles may be distinguished as the 24 tapers or sises which were fastened on a frame called the "Judas-Cross" or "Lenten hearse" (vide pp. 64, 74, 83, 149). [4] Paving tiles. [5] Eaves-board.

[1] i.e. Communion tokens. Token money was probably the payment made by people (by way of Easter offering) when they received their token that they were prepared—by confession—to make their Easter Communion; cf. the present use in the Church of Scotland. Mr. Thomas Burns in Old Scottish Communion Plate (chap. iv) says there is no evidence of Pre-Reformation Tokens in Scotland.

[2] It is likely that the quarterly collections on pp. 9, 10, 11, etc. included payments for pews; there is a reference on p. 14 also.

1 Crewets—2 small vessels or flagons for the water and wine used in the Mass.

2 Paschal hasin—part of the erection for the paschal light. 3 'Ahhey' has been crossed out.

4 cf. p. 140 Ludlow Accounts (Camd. Soc.), spike nails: cf. speckings, i.e. large nails (Halliwell).

5 Canopy—either fixed in the church over an altar (prohably the high altar), or a portable one for processions, e.g. on Corpus Christi Day; vide note, p. 14, One canopy might serve both purposes.

6 Leather or tape. 7 A close of land.

8 Passing bell—rung for the dying in order to warn all good Christians to pray for a soul at the point of departure; also (superstitiously) to purify the air of hovering evil spirits that the soul might have a clear passage to heaven. Became confused with 'soul' bell, which was rung after death, and dropped into disuse, the name remaining attached to the latter ringing.

[1] i.e. March 1543—March 1544. "Thys yere [1543] was a grete pestilens in London" (Grey Friars Chronicle. Camden Society, vol. 53). This fact is evident from the list of burials. Nearly 150 are recorded; 50 for the whole year would have been unusual, but over 100 were buried in three months (Aug: Sept: Oct:). It will be seen that, of this total, over 40 were buried without any fee, and some 30 more for a fee of 2d. On p. 89 will be found certain entries which should come before those on this page.

The Rerydges of John Read and thomas wood & John stow[7] xxiiij^{s} ob'

[1] vide n. 9, p. 12. [2] Stock. [3] Such assistance was not unusual.

[4] Feb. 2; Purification of the Virgin. All churchgoers took candles, which were blessed by the priest and sprinkled with holy water. At the High Mass they were held lighted in the hand, and afterwards taken home as relics.

[5] Probably the matin-mass priest. [6] Five books.

[7] Arrears of money due during their years of office. It is a note in a strange handwriting.

1 I have not been able to discover their offence. 2 Absolving.

3 I have failed to discover any other trace of this suit. The terms used will be clear from the following description of the legal process involved:—Having entered his plaint or action, the plaintiff proceeds to arrest the defendant on mesne process and hold him to bail. He then serves him with a copy of the Declaration, or formal statement of his demand. The plaintiff then gets the judge to fix a day for the trial and procures a venire facias, or writ to the sheriff's officer bidding a jury (or inquest) come, and, there being a deficiency of attendance, prays a "tales," or supplement from the bystanders. The jury give their verdict, followed by judgment of the court accordingly, and this is registered on the file of proceedings.

[1] In 1547, Injunctions (for which see Wriothesley's Chronicle, Camden Society) were issued for the furtherance of the Reformation; inter alia was a clause :—"They shall take away, utterly extinct and destroy all shrines, coverings of shrines, all tables, candlesticks, trindles, or rolls of wax, pictures, paintings or all other monuments of feigned miracles, pilgrimages, idolatry or superstition; so that there remain no memory of the same in walls, glass windows, or elsewhere within their churches or houses." The only ceremonial lights allowed to remain were two candles on the table before the Sacrament. This is sufficient explanation of numerous items in the following pages, as well as of this present sale of wax, rendered useless by the Protector's commands.

[2] Probably candlesticks and lamps, and perhaps monumental brasses.

[1] Edward's commissioners estimated silver plate at 4/4 the ounce; Churchwardens were often able to make a much better bargain.

[2] Sep. 1547 the King's Visitation at St. Paul's Cathedral began, and all images were pulled down (Grey Friars Chron:) "and so alle imagys pullyd downe thoerow alle Ynglonde att that tyme, and all churches new whytte lymed with the commandmentts wryttyne on the walles."

[3] Here used of any kind of figure representation.

[4] The sale of these things is evidence of the fiercely moving Protestantism of the Protector Somerset.

2 In 1547 every parish was ordered to have a copy of Erasmus' paraphrase of the New Testament—to judge from the sum paid, only the first volume (the Gospels) was purchased.

3 Appointed in 1547 for the enforcement of the Injunctions, and for control of church goods no longer required for the services.

4 The Doctrine of masses for the dead having been rejected by the Church of England, the property which maintained doctrine was taken away and converted "to good and godly uses" (1 Ed. vi, c. 14).

1 One of the early Tudor attempts at solving the problem of poor relief; such relief had been a compulsory burden on parishes since 1536. There had been a chest in St. Martin's choir since 1532 (vide p. 28), but whether for the poor or not is not said. In 1547, churchwardens were ordered to have sucb a chest.

2 Psalter, by 2 and 3 Ed. vi, c. i, psalms were allowed to be adapted from the Bible. This book might be the First Prayer Book of Ed. vi, published in 1549.

3 First mention of such registers. The parish registers are extant from Jan. 21st, 1550-1, and have been published by the Harleian Society. By the Injunctions of 1547, registers were commanded to be carefully kept.

4 i.e. valuing them preparatory to their sale, see p. 137.

5 Solder.

6 Injunctions of 1547: all churches to have "a comely and honest pulpit."

7 From the time of Edward i, every parish was bound to have a certain amount of armour ready for use; it was periodically inspected.

[1] In 1550, Ridley, Bishop of London, had ordered parish officers "to erect and set up the Lord's board after the form of an honest table, decently covered, in such place of the quire or chancel as shall be thought most meet . . . . so that the ministers with the communicants may have their place separated from the rest of the people." The provision of special pews would be quite a natural sequel.

[1] Strong Romanist—famous for his reply to those who condemned the theory of transubstantiation :—"You have the Word, but we have the sword." He it was who presided over the public disputations at Oxford between Cranmer, Ridley and Latimer, on the one hand, and certain picked delegates from the University on the other.

[2] The examinations made, and recorded on pp. 20, 57, 126, 133, 149, seem to have been a result of this appointment.

[1] Dec. 25, 1553—apparently overlaps the accounts of their predecessors (vide n. 1, p. 142), but neither receipts nor expenditure begin until Lady Day Quarter.

[2] So written—I cannot explain why the mistake of 6s. is made. The 5s. mentioned by the auditors (p. 149) makes it nearly correct.

[3] Appears to be the record of a sale of old books.

[4] vide n. 2, p. 130.

1 Philip of Spain arrived at Southampton July 20, 1554; was married to Mary at Winchester on July 25, and made a state entry into London and Westminster, with the Queen, on Aug. 18th. 2 The new bishop (Bonner) was very active in restoring the Roman books, ritual and doctrine. This 'book' may have been a return of all that the parish had or lacked for the due performance of the Roman services. 3 A surplice with narrow sleeves; now part of a bishop's robes. Parish clerks wore rochetts without sleeves—the sexton probably had the same kind. 4 The Register mentions "Nov. 19 Don Fra'ciscus de Arroga': hisp:" and Nov. 24 "Joh'es de Pineda, hisp:" (vide p. 75, Machyn's Diary). 5 Holly and ivy for Christmas. 6 Register gives "March 11, Maria Margar: hispa." 7 In 1553 churchwardens were ordered to take certificates of their church's goods to the commissioners—one of whom was "Mr. Chamley," the Chief Justice—at the Guildhall. Mary may have made use of the same body for her own purposes (vide p. 34, Machyn's Diary). 8 vide p. 12, etc.

1 vide article by Prof. Maitland in the English Historical Review, Jan. 1900. The style given above is Elizabeth's full style save only the earthly supremacy over the Church which could not politicly be asserted or rejected—hence the ambiguous "etc" which might or might not cover this ecclesiastical power, as subsequent events should show to be most convenient.

p In the Register many names are marked "p"; this might stand for "pauper" or "poor," but it will be seen that in a good many instances this could not be meant; the letter probably stands for "peste." I have transferred it to these accounts.

2 The first of these was purchased between March 25th and June 24th ; probably copies of the Prayer Book issued (with a command for its use on and after June 24th) in 1559. It was in common use some time before the official date (vide Strype's Life of Archbishop Grindal) ; vide note 5, p. 185.

3 By injunctions issued in 1559, tables were to be substituted for altars ; cf. note 6, p. 176.

4 The injunctions of 1559 do not mention rood lofts. The rood or crucifix would disappear as an "image." cf. Stow's Annales, 1559 A.D. For the taking down of the Loft, see p. 192.

5 In 1559 the Court of High Commission, established in that year, ordered a general visitation and issued injunctions very similar to those of 1547.

1 Jan. 25th, 1560-1 "Franciscus Bacon (filius D'm Nicho: Bacon Magni Anglie sigilli Custodis)," vide p. 4 (R.) (Harleian Society). Francis' mother was a daughter of Sir Anthony Cooke (vide p. 409), and sister of Mildred, the second wife of the first Lord Burghley. 2 Ludlow Churchwardens' Accounts, p. 103 (Camden Society, 1869) contains almost the same item. 3 Grindal. 4 The sum of the page should be for receipts or expenses—this is for both, and contains the total of the quarterly gatherings with the three expenses added on.

1 Frame, cf. Ludlow Churchwardens' Account, p. 103 (Camden Society, 1869).
2 Perhaps writing a petition (e.g. to the Bishop or Commissioners) that it might be pulled down. In Oct. 1561, a special injunction was issued as to rood lofts (vide note 1, p. 193); but here the parish anticipates the order.
3 The first book of Homilies was republished in 1560, but this item refers to a special publication.

S'm' pag'—iij^{li} vij^{s} v^{d}

1 There is no entry in the Register of Baptisms which can refer to this occasion.

2 Result of the "testimoniall," on p. 191. The Rood Loft disappeared in 1552-3 (vide pp. 143, 147). It was put up again in 1553-4 (vide pp. 162, 163); the Rood was taken down in 1559 (p. 177).

3 Sawing.

4 The Loft would be reached by a stairway, generally circular and built in a turret, or in the thickness of a buttress, There would be two doors, one on the level of the church floor and one opening on to the loft, if only one of them was blocked up, it would seem to have been the top one (vide p. 193); some new means of reaching the loft must have been arranged.

1 The ever recurring recognition of the Queen's movements was not necessarily the outburst of overflowing loyalty, cf. Machyn's Diary (Camden Society), June 1563, "in the mornyng ther was sett on dyvers chyrche dorres, be-cause that he sayd that they dyd not ryng when that the quen went to Grenwyche, and that they shuld not open the chyrche dors tyll that he had a nobull (6^s 8^d) on evere chyrche by the water syde from Tempull bare to the Towre, but he cold gett no thyng yett." "He" was a harbinger of the Queen.

1 Part of the military equipment of the parish.

2 Not to be found by subtracting the given total of expenditure from the receipts. That process gives a balance of £7 15s. 6½d., to which must be added the 13s. 4d. disallowed on p. 199, making a balance of £8 8s. 10½d. The odd 6d. seems to have originated in the mind of the scrivener.

1 Giliana Meretrix (R.)

2 Mr. Tho. Wells, Clericus Vicarius Eccl. St. Martini (R.), vide n. 4, p. 178. The Register, no doubt, gives a purely honorary distinction to one who had been vicar. Best is declared by Newcourt (Repertor. Londin.) to have been reinstated in 1558—Mr. Hennessy has edited this statement out of his edition of Newcourt—but there seems little doubt that it was, at any rate, approximately correct. If Wells had been vicar when he died, the Churchwardens' Accounts would almost certainly have described him otherwise than simply as "preste." But it is possible that Wells conformed and kept his place; at any rate his name is not in the list of ejected ministers given by Nicholas Sanders in "De Visib. Monarch. Eccles."

[1] Archbp. Parker wished that one uniform translation should be used throughout the country; the work of revision was carried out by the Bishops and resulted in the "Bishops' Bible" published in 1568; in 1571, Convocation ordered that every Church should be provided with a copy of this edition. The present "Authorised" Bible is a revision of that issued in 1568.

1 Should be 1573. The greater part of their first year of office was in 1574, and the scribe has given that date to the whole of it.

2 Similarly in 1593-4 a balance was, by order of the Vestry (Minutes, vol. I, f. 36), paid over to the Churchwardens, cf. p. 366.

3 The Token money, a survival of Pre-Reformation usage, was quite distinct from the Easter Collections or other receipts from Communions. From this year the Communion collections are recorded in the Rate Books, cf. note, p. 101.

1 The rate books contain numerous entries of expenses on his behalf. He was found wounded in Long Acre. Straw was bought for his bed; Goodwife Bellowes tended him and "made hym an Alebury" (boiling ale, spiced and sugared, with sops of bread in it.—Halliwell), and provided "butter to suppell his head." The Collectors "boughte on matt, one mattress, one bolster of ffeathers and one pillow of fethers and one paier of sheets to have in store for the like nede at all tymes; wch cost. ix^{s}."

1 The Cathedral was burnt in 1561, and so damaged that the roof and steeple had to he pulled down, and in 1580 it suffered by earthquake (vide p. 319). Many useless attempts to rebuild it were made and money is said to have been collected for the purpose, but there is nothing to show how much this parish contributed. (London Past and Present).

1 Plague.

2 No doubt the crosses and legends which were fastened to the door posts of houses infected by the plague.

3 Red wands, 3 feet long, were to be carried by all who went abroad from infected houses.

4 Vestry Minutes, Sep. 1593; "It was before [certain vestrymen] agreed y^{t} daniell Stocken of westm' should kill the dogges of this p'ishe, And to Allowe unto him for killinge of eu'y dogges ij^{d}." This was a traditional complement of the plague, the animals being "very apt cattell to carry the infection." The Minutes also record the appointment of "searchers" in July, and the receipt of various subscriptions "toward the Relyff of the vyceted popell." The Cecil family were most regular in their generosity.

1 In Jan. 1588-9 the Vestry Minutes record that "we the Viccar maisters And Churchwardens" have chosen Nich. Bedworth to be parish clerk. It appears that, in June 1588, the Vestry had removed from that post Forrest who had "been detected of much lewdness." The Bishop of London declared this action null as being contrary to his jurisdiction and in defiance of an order issued by him (Gibson's Codex II, p. 1478). Forrest was then "judicially deprived of the place...by sentence given by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners" (1596. 15 Oct. Calendar of Cecil Papers). On Bedworth's death in Sep. 1596 (p. 480), Forrest unsuccessfully endeavoured to regain his place.

APPENDIX E.

The Vestry.

The earliest recorded use of the word "vestry" or "revestry" as describing the body charged with, or at least exercising, the functions of parochial government in this parish is found in the Minute Book under date 1576, from which time it is used apparently at haphazard, as an alternative to "the masters." The "Titles" of the Accounts until March 1546 (p. 111) show that the churchwardens were elected "by the consent will and agreement of the whole body of the parish"; from that time until 1583, they are simply described as "chosen and appointed." In December, 1583 (p. 352), the wardens for the following two years were elected "by the whole assent and consent of the masters of the parish. From the year 1561 (p. 196), the Churchwardens had been accustomed to render account to the "masters" of the parish, but earlier (March) in the same year (p. 180), a balance was handed to the new officers "in the p'sens of the hole p'ish," on which occasion (p. 178), nine parishioners signed the accounts of the outgoing wardens.

There is nothing definite to show how the government of the parish passed from the hands of the full parish meeting to a smaller body of "masters." The process may have been gradual and natural, a case of the survival of the fittest, in which men who were insignificant in position and attainments simply ceased to take an active share in business about which they did not greatly care. Or, it may be permissible to trace the origin of the Vestry to the committee of 1553 (p. 150), whose appointment was apparently due to the unsatisfactory methods of audit which obtained before that date.

No effort of the imagination is needed in order to realize that this committee might easily retain its powers long after the immediate purpose of its appointment had been fulfilled. On this point no evidence is extant, but from 1594 onwards, we find persons referred to in the Register of Burials as Vestrymen; whilst an entry in the Minute Book shows that by October 1598 (Appendix D), the Vestry was, if not limited, at least self electing. The Select Vestry ruled the parish from this time till 1834. During the eighteenth century, five attempts were made, twice by petition to the House of Commons, and three times by lawsuits, to eject the Select Vestry and once more to put the government of the parish in the hands of the whole body of the parishioners. All these attacks on the corporation in power failed through lack of evidence which might disprove that corporation's plea of "immemorial custom."

Such evidence was to be found nowhere, save in the Churchwardens' Accounts which are now printed; through ignorance or design they were not brought into Court until the suit of Simpson v. Holroyd in 1834, when, thanks to the entries in them, the hopelessly corrupt Vestry was dispossessed, and the really immemorial custom was re-established.
